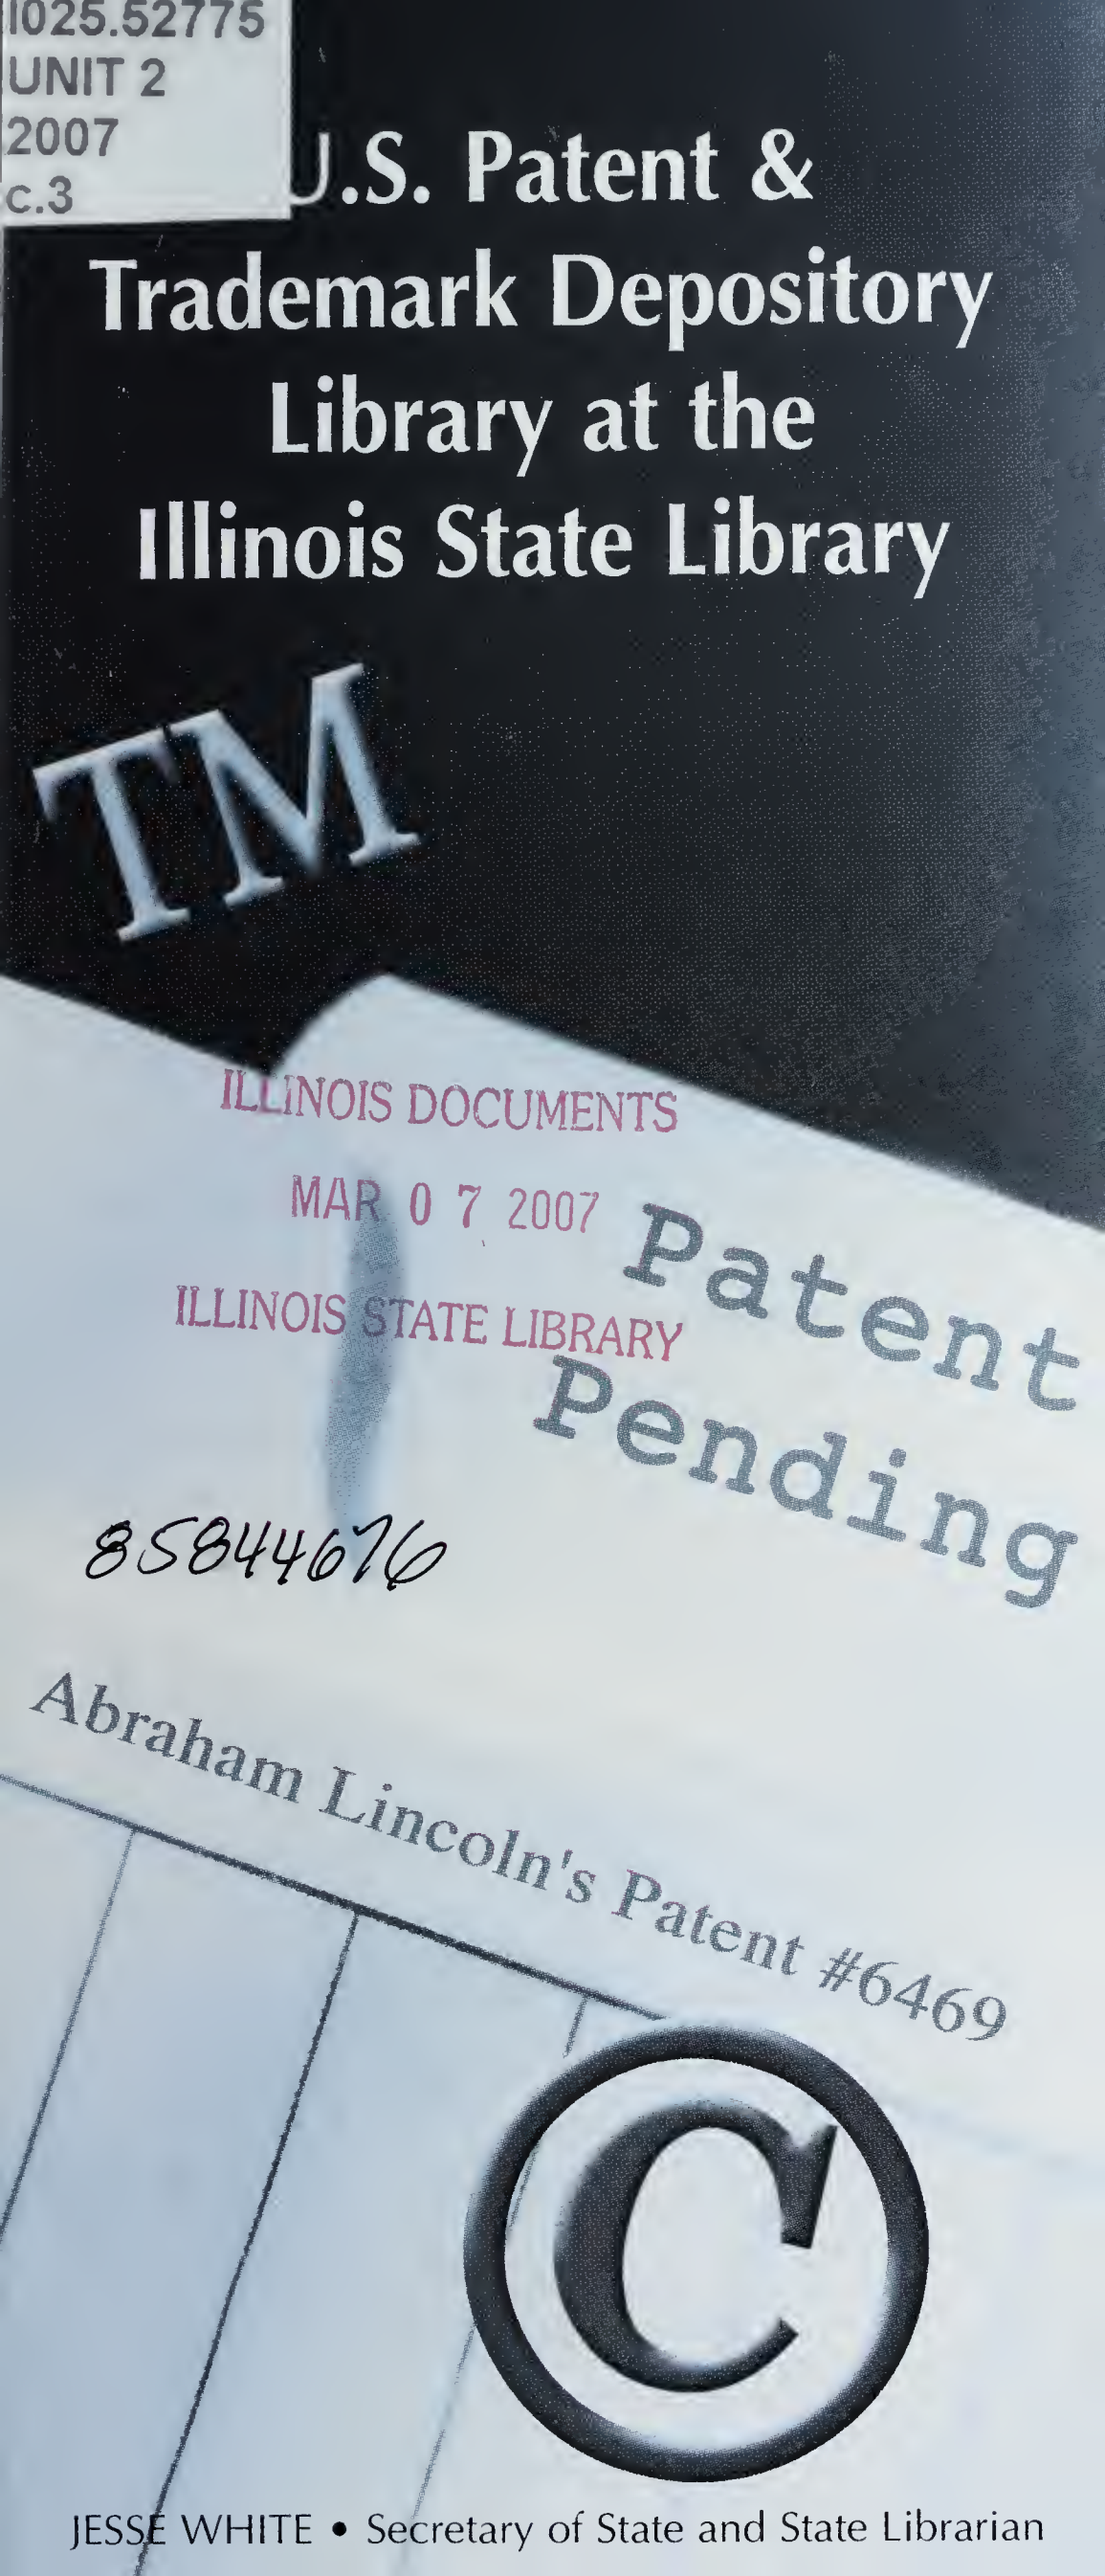
U.S. Patent & Trademark Depository Library at the Illinois State Library



JESSE WHITE • Secretary of State and State Librarian

The Illinois State Library became a U.S. Patent & Trademark Depository Library in January 1984 and is one of only two such libraries in the state. In this capacity, the State Library offers resources and services important to Illinois government employees as well as others seeking information on patents and trademarks.

The Patent & Trademark Library supports Illinois' economic development by providing patent and trademark information to businesses, attorneys, researchers and inventors. It also supports education among students by encouraging research on patents and creating their own inventions.

Library staff can help you get started on a patent or trademark search or provide guidelines on securing your own patent or trademark. For more information, visit the library or call 217-782-5659 to talk with one of our patent and trademark experts. As State Librarian, I encourage you to take advantage of this wonderful resource.

Depository Users and Uses

Students, scientists, researchers, librarians, patent attorneys, marketing analysts, inventors, historians, government officials and engineers search patents for the information they need for their jobs or personal projects. Patent and trademark materials available at the State Library provide technical information that frequently cannot be found elsewhere. Visit the Patent & Trademark Library to:

- Avoid duplication of research and development.
- Determine whether a patent for a product has been granted.
- Access information about registered and pending federal trademarks.
- Obtain information in a specific subject area.
- Find specifications and drawings of known patents.
- Obtain copyright information.

Library Services

The Patent & Trademark Depository Library offers the following free services to patrons:

- General information about patents, trademarks and copyrights via mail, telephone, fax or e-mail.
- Training for individuals or groups on how to search for patents and trademarks.
- Computer access to free Web materials and U.S. Patent & Trademark Office databases.
- Patent and trademark reference service.

Patent & Trademark Depository Resources

State-of-the-art access to patent databases is available through PubWEST, CASSIS and public terminals with Internet access. Searching by patent and classification numbers will yield lists of related patents dating back to 1790. The system also may be searched by keyword, company name and inventor name for more recent patents. CASSIS and the Internet also offer all currently registered and pending federal trademarks. Library resources include:

Official Gazette – Patents
1872 – Present

Patent Office Reports (title varies)
1790 – 1872

Index of Patents
